The Third Sunday of Easter

Volume 44 – Number 18

“They left . . . rejoicing that they had been found worthy to suffer dishonor.” (Acts 5:41)

That’s rather odd! Wouldn’t you expect the apostles to be grateful that they left that trial alive? Or relieved that they didn’t get punished any more severely? They may have thought these things, of course, but it seems that they were most happy to have been found “worthy” to be arrested, threatened, and flogged by their own people (Acts 5:41).

What gave the apostles a perspective like this? The answer lies in one simple line from today’s passage. Explaining themselves to the Sanhedrin, Peter and the others said, “The God of our ancestors raised Jesus, though you had him killed by hanging him on a tree” (Acts 5:30).

Jesus’ resurrection changed everything! The apostles had seen him endure an agonizing death and still come out the other side filled with the glory of God. With their very eyes, they saw definitive proof that death had been overcome. It wasn’t the end of Jesus’ story, and it wasn’t the end of theirs either.

Around seventy-five years after this event, a bishop from Antioch named Ignatius said something similar. He had been arrested for his belief in Christ, and while on his way to execution in Rome, he wrote to the Christians there and begged them not to interfere. Ignatius had lived a long life, and death didn’t scare him. In fact, he was eager to go. “Allow me to become food for the wild beasts,” he wrote, “through whom it will be granted me to attain to God” (To the Romans, 4).

Both Peter and Ignatius tell us that the gates of heaven have been opened to us. Death, and everything death represents, has lost its power over us. They also tell us that fear has lost its power, for all fears draw their strength from the fear of death (Hebrews 2:15). Jesus, our risen Lord, has overcome everything, and he now invites you to share in that victory. Death is not the end of your story. It’s really just the beginning.

“Jesus, we praise you for the victory of your resurrection!”
